

Lecture Series on China's Environment

Sponsor: Rice Family Foundation

Period: 2008-2010

Funding Level: $100,000

This grant supports a lecture series explores the environmental ramifications of economic growth in China and the challenges to protect natural resources and preserve biodiversity. It will discuss the science foundation for environmental decision making and strategies for engaging the government, private, non-government and academic sectors in sustainable development. Key players in the environmental arena will be invited from China to join the discussion with Yale faculty and students.